

Contributor Registration FAQ

Q: When will I get my contributor code?

The timeframe for receiving your registration discount code will vary based on the program you have been accepted to.

Once you have been accepted as a contributor to a program, you will receive an email that will notify you that you are required to complete Stage 2 in the SIGGRAPH Submission Portal System (Linklings).

- For Technical Papers, Art Papers, and Real-Time Live contributors, the Stage 2 form will ask for the name and email of the contributor who should receive the registration discount code for that submission. The listed individual will be sent the information on where to locate the discount code.
- For Art Gallery, Emerging Technologies, Immersive Pavilion, Labs, Courses, Talks, Appy Hour, Production Sessions, and Posters, the corresponding author will be notified of where codes will be posted for use by listed contributors.
- Electronic Theater and VR Theater submissions will have a code provided upon request.

If a submission receives multiple uses of a code, it is the responsibility of the contributors to determine who will use the codes. Discount codes will be available approximately three weeks after a submission has been accepted.

NOTE: The code will be applied to the early-bird registration fee regardless of when registration is completed.

How to Register Using Your Code:

1. Visit <https://register.rcsreg.com/r2/sigg2024/> and answer the mandatory questions on this page to continue.
2. Select the “Contributor Registration” option.
3. If you are:
 - a. a non-member, select “Non-Member Contributor Registration”. On the next page, enter your discount code in the gold contributor discount code box and proceed with filling out the remainder of the on-screen instructions to complete your registration.

- b. an ACM SIGGRAPH Student Member, select “Student Member Contributor Registration”. On the next screen, enter your membership ID number and your last name, then select “Student Member Registration”. On the next page, enter your discount code in the gold contributor discount code box and proceed with filling out the remainder of the on-screen instructions to complete your registration.
- c. an ACM SIGGRAPH Member, enter your membership ID number and your last name, then select “Member Contributor Registration”. On the next page, enter your discount code in the gold contributor discount code box and proceed with filling out the remainder of the on-screen instructions to complete your registration.

FAQs

Q: "I didn't want to miss the early deadline, so I registered anyway just to be safe."

A: If a contributor receives a discount code after registering, they should contact registration at: registration-s2024@siggraph.org and let them know they have received the discount code. Registration will apply the discount code to the early-bird rate and provide a refund.

Q: "There are X of us presenting, but the code is only good for Y people."

A: There is a specific number of registration codes allocated for each submission type. That information is provided in the accept letter you received. Additional discounts cannot be provided.

Q: Who is eligible to use the code provided for my submission?

A: Only those listed as contributors/authors/contacts with a submission in Linklings are eligible to use that code.

Q: How do I find my registration code?

A: For Papers, the contact you provide when you fill out the Stage 2 form after acceptance will receive the information for the registration code.

For all other programs, the corresponding author will be notified when the registration code(s) is available.

Your unique, discounted registration code(s) will be uploaded to your accepted submission in the SIGGRAPH Submission Portal System (Linklings). Access the code(s) by:

- Log into the Submission System: <https://www.siggraph.org/submit>.
- From your “My Submission” page, you will see your “Discounted Registration Code” listed under “Checklist” at the bottom of your page.

Q: If someone used a code and is no longer attending, can another listed contributor on that submission use that code?

A: Yes. Email registration-s2024@siggraph.org and they can assist with making the substitution, unless the code is non-transferrable.

Q: My registration code is not working. Whom should I contact?

A: Contact the program for which you have been accepted. The email to contact is provided on each submission page.

Q: Whom should I contact if I am having issues while registering for help with the code?

A: Contact registration-s2024@siggraph.org.

Q: I submitted to two programs and was accepted. Can I combine the codes from each?

A: If you have more than one accepted submission, discount codes CANNOT be combined for a larger discount. Only one discount code can be applied to each individual registration record.

